

Purmo introduces 2 new stylish heating solutions: designer radiators Tinos and Paros

In response to the growing demand for design radiators, Purmo introduces 2 new vertical heating solutions: Tinos V and Paros V. This latest extension to the wide range of Purmo radiators fully complies with the brand's philosophy that functionality and design go hand in hand perfectly.

Inspired by the architecture of the early skyscrapers with their clean and sharp lines, the Tinos and the Paros bring added value for both contemporary and traditional interiors. A result of the minimalistic design of these radiators is that all unnecessary details are omitted. The exquisitely designed flat fronted panels cover the very latest in heating technology, both designs are sure to make an impact due to their aesthetics and comfortable heating.

This is precisely what makes them ideal to match all kinds of architecture and all kinds of spaces, like the living room, kitchen and bathroom. And to increase their functionality, both the Tinos and the Paros can be optionally equipped with a handy towel rack in stainless steel.

What separates both model ranges though, is the design. Where the Tinos has straight edges, the Paros is executed with rounded edges. The Tinos and Paros are available as single (type 11) or double (type 21) heating panels. Another important product feature is the fact that they are closely mounted to the wall (distance from wall to back of radiator is 10 mm only).

With a depth of the radiator of 73 mm (for type 11), the total distance from wall to front of radiator is only 83 mm. Heating doesn't come any slimmer.

The Tinos V and Paros V are available in combinations of 3 heights (1800/ 1950/ 2100 mm) and 4 widths

(300/ 450/ 600/ 750 mm). Both come in over 200 RAL-colours, plus a limited range of trendy metallic and new matt colours.

"With the introduction of the Tinos and the Paros complementing Purmo's range of designer radiators, we have set a new standard for contemporary radiator design. A logical step when you consider our experience in providing clever heating solutions,"

Elo Dhaene,
Brand Commercial Director.
